One warm night, a dog was walking next to a river. He wanted to go for a swim.

There was a sign that said "Please do not swim after 10 o'clock." But dogs cannot read! A big black thing came up out of the water. The dog barked, but there was no one around.

Lisa and Ginny were walking in the forest. As they passed a clearing, they heard a loud laugh. It was coming from a small cabin.

“Who could that be?” asked Lisa.

“Let’s find out!” said Ginny.

They ran to the cabin and looked inside.

My friend Wesley has a pet raccoon. The raccoon's name is Bandit. For show and tell Wesley took Bandit to class in a cage.

"Can we pet him?" asked Trent.

"Maybe later," said Wesley.

Trent did not listen. Trent opened the cage door. Bandit ran out.

My family spent the night in a cabin in the woods. In the middle of the night, we heard a noise. It was the scariest noise we'd ever heard. It was a scrape, a scratch, and a knock.

"What was that?" asked Mom. We listened. Then we smelled something foul.

"I think it's behind that door," said Dad.

Early one morning some fishermen went out to sea.

"I think we will catch a whole lot of fish today," said one of the fishermen.

Around lunchtime, the net was full. The strong men pulled and pulled on the heavy net, but something was stuck in it.
